Mabel Beardsley Makes Stage Hit in Mrs. Langtry's Company.

SPECIAL BY CABLE.

London June 7 .- One of the greatest successes of the theatrical season is the impersonation by Miss Mabel Beardsley of the woman journalist in Mrs. Langtry's presentation of "The Desenerates." She has made a distinct hit.

Miss Beardsley is the sister of the late Aubrey Beardsley, who created the craze for grotesque posters. She has, strangely enough, also made something of a reputation as a contributor to magnaines and newspapers.

Before joining Mrs. Langury's company Miss Beardaley was with Richard Mansfield. She was toured in the United States and ather countries. Critica predict that she will seen be a star.

ly, he threw her to the floor and ground her floor with his heel. Her screams brought Sergeant Enruett to her aid Miss Hall's Rose is crushed, her mouth and cheeks torn open and her eyes completely closed. Her injuries are considered very serious. Clayton was known to Miss Hall in Oakland by the name of Crothers, he was her admirer, but she grew tired of him. Orothers, or Clayton, as he gave his name to the police, followed her to this city, and last night he called her up on the telephone, and, representing himself to be Chief of Police Wittman, told her she was wanted at the Hall of Jussice. Miss Hall and a friend called on the Chief and found that he had sent them no message. When they returned to their lodgings Clayton was awaiting them in the hallway, and he at once commenced the attack.

At the City Prison Clayton was charged with assault with intent to do great boddy harm.

cient Room in Windsor Castle. Clent Koom in Windsor Castle. How many folk know that there is yet at Windsor Castle the room kept intact which used to do duty for incarcerating unyone whom the Sovereign wished to kneep conveniently out of the way in the days gone by? It is hardly likely that King Edward VII, will need to use it for the purpose that it so often served in those times, but there it is, nevertheless. This prison is above the gateway under which the visitor passes before he proceeds along the stair that climbs up to the celebrated keep. It is an interesting survival which many visitors overlook.

THE SECOND WEEK OF OUR GREAT We spread before you bargains far and away ahead of any offered in St. Louis in many a day. The goods are of splendid quality-most seasonable and desirable.
